Message from our Rector

One of the most time consuming and frustrating tasks at home is sorting out the “junk drawer”. Every home has one; it’s that drawer where we place all those items which will come in useful one day. We cannot throw them away, because the minute we do, will be the minute we need them.

However, every now and again we need to have a good sort out, simply to keep it in order. The time to sort the drawer out is usually when we are looking for something specific and, search as we might, it cannot be found. It’s at times like this when those famous words are uttered in sheer frustration, “I’m going to sort this out once and for all”.

Then, everything gets thrown away, except for a few “basic necessities” like curtain hooks, elastic bands, shoe laces.....

And do these words sound familiar, “From now on, this place must be kept tidy”

Within a few weeks however, things are worse than ever!

It reminds me of the warning given by Jesus in Saint Matthew’s Gospel (12:43-45) about the evil spirit who comes out of a man, and seeks a place to rest. Unable to find a place, the evil spirit returns to find everything clean and put in order, and the evil spirit brings with it seven other spirits more wicked than the first, so that the final condition of the man is worse than it was initially.

It also makes me wonder about our hearts and lives. This month we begin to observe Lent , that time of prayer, preparation and penance. That time of spring cleaning our hearts and our lives, and yet if we closely and honestly examine ourselves, we may find that we are as bad as ever, criticising others, rather than praying for them, seeing the worst of people, instead of the good, blaming others when things aren't right, instead of doing something about it ourselves, !!!!!!! and what of our prayer lives and daily study of the Bible, has that slipped also ?

It is for this reason that we must continually come before God, confessing our sins, and seeking his guidance in our lives.

God knows us better than we know ourselves, in one sense that may sound quite scary, everyone we meet will hear our wonderful words, but God knows the content of our hearts, but it is also extremely liberating, we can tell God just how awful we feel, how challenging some people are, without having to paint on a smile and pretend everything is wonderful. God understands our frailty and weakness, He sees how, despite our very best efforts, our lives and our hearts become full of those things which separate us from God.

Yet, God is always there, encouraging and supporting us, and helping us to "Spring clean" our hearts and our lives.

We realise how hard and how often we must attend to the cleaning of our homes, if we are to keep them from gathering unwanted rubbish. A quick polish and vacuum may clean superficially, but in reality, we know the truth.

In respect of our Spiritual lives and our relationship with God, is a "Spring clean" once a year and the occasional polish and vacuum sufficient?

Your faithful servant

Malcolm

The Crew Youth Group
St James' Church
Pre-Lent Chocolate Party
26th Feb 2012
6pm - 7.45pm Parish Hall

On Feb 26th, the Crew will be exploring the Lenten tradition of 'giving up' before creating a chocolate fountain and other chocolate delights.

As we doubt our ability to consume a whole chocolate fountain without assistance, we would be pleased if anyone would like to join us from @7pm to share in our indulgence before the Lenten fast begins

If you would like to join the Crew please contact Tina Lightfoot (tina.lightfoot@googlemail.com) for a registration form and ask your parent or guardian to sign it.

Please return it to Tina or Malcolm.

Nature Notes.

What a difference a year makes. At this time last year we were shivering from the snow & ice and severe cold weather, wildlife was coming into gardens desperate for food and the plants seemed limp and lifeless. In early January 2012 we already have daffodils, daisies and roses flowering in the garden. Robins, song thrushes and blackbirds are singing their spring songs, blue and great tits are flying around with nest material, great spotted woodpeckers are drumming furiously, and the countryside in general seems to be coming alive much earlier than usual. I'm sure we will have a cold snap to slow this down, but the relatively warm days of the last few months have certainly got the natural world confused.

Last weekend I witnessed the sight of a traffic island in Surrey completely covered in daffodils and there are reports of them flowering as far north as Aberdeen. This unusual warm spell combined with welcome 4" of rain in December has meant that the Pit is filling slowly at last, and last years annual village rainfall reached the dizzy heights of 20inches, still well short of the last five years average of about 35".

I guess no one really knows what future rainfall/weather patterns will be, and 2011 might just have been a one off, but it is a warning that "global warming" whatever that implies might be changing the weather patterns in a way in which we have not experienced before.

At the Pit three cormorants are regularly trying to catch our small fish often in the company of a grey heron. A beautiful kingfisher has been seen regularly along the canal, and a green woodpecker heard yaffling in Littleton. I also managed to capture a flock of lapwings flying over the field at the back of the Law College, a welcome sight when numbers inland seem to be far less than twenty or so years ago when they were very common in and around the village. You can however still see big flocks in coastal areas such as the Dee Estuary near Thurstaston, or on

Traeth Lavan sands and accompanying Nature Reserves along the Menai Straits. Both areas are great places to watch wildlife in close up especially in the two hours before and after high tides and have good access from the Thurstaston Visitor Centre, and the promenade at Llanfairfechan respectively. Wildlife enthusiasts will also welcome the opening of a new RSPB Reserve and Visitor Centre at Burton Mere on Wirral, access from the Burton to Puddington Road in Burton Village, another exciting local reserve for birdwatchers in particular. Country Market

Congratulations to The Ring O Bells for the introduction of the Christleton Country Market, an event which takes place each month on their Car Park. The first two Markets held before Christmas were a great success and it is planned to continue these markets throughout 2012. The next three dates will be Saturday's 11th February, 10th March and 14th April. The quality of the food on display was excellent, and we think the Market is well worth the visit if you haven't already discovered it.

A Hop Along SKIPS Lane

This is the unique history of a small village lane, which tells the story of the people who lived there, and how some businesses which started in the lane, became nationally important.

All Welcome.

Compassion

What a lovely thing it is –
A heart that's warm and kind,
One filled with compassion
That soothes the troubled mind.
A heart that's all forgiving
And always understands,
One who goes the second mile
And never makes demands.
Many hearts grow cold and hard
From knocks upon life's way,
And others lack compassion
In the world today.
Always trim your lamp of love
And keep the flame alight –
For the heart filled with compassion
Is precious in God's sight.

"WE DON'T DO BRAVERY HERE!"

These words were spoken to me by a young male blond nurse, as I refused painkillers on my (again) emergency trip to the Countess. This second visit was a result of my operation before Christmas, this time entailing pleurisy and a suspected clot on the lung.

I write this from my hospital bed (2 January 2012), and would like to thank so many friends for their good wishes, telephone enquiries, cards, plants, and for delicious "meals on wheels". Everyone has been so kind and supportive even though I messed up the holiday period, having been in here since Boxing Day.

Best wishes to all for a Happy and Healthy New Year.

RESTORING HOPE – SEIZING THE MOMENT:

Ideas on Healthy Churches

St James' House-group is a group of people who are committed to studying topics regarding faith, or of some spiritual nature, in relation to our understanding of the Bible. Issues are dealt with in a small group situation – currently around ten members from three different churches – which allows fun and flexibility.

This helps wide-ranging, and often deep, discussions to take place in an atmosphere of trust and fellowship – aided by plenty of tea, coffee, cake and biscuits! The “house-group” approach was felt to be a potentially excellent way of including everyone in the consideration of questions of faith and how Christians should live.

Over the past few years we have covered topics such as :

- Books of the Bible and their themes: The story of Ruth; Daniel (Spiritual Living in a Secular World); The Gospels (Tradition, Rebellion, Promise ...)
- Hot Topics: Genesis, Darwin and Dawkins; Anger; Dimensions of World Religions: Spirituality and so on.

Currently, the group has been grappling with the issue of Healthy Churches, using The Healthy Churches' Handbook by Robert Warren, 2004, (HCH) as a guide. Another important guide in our study and discussions were selected passages from the New Testament. These readings helped exercise our minds and focus on Jesus' teachings and the development of the early church that flowed from his life and death.

But what is health? Health in this context is ... Salvation ie wholeness, balance and harmony with God and all creation. A Healthy Church is one which has been touched and energised by the presence of God, so that it reflects something of the wholeness made possible through the knowledge of God as revealed by the Holy Spirit (HCH). Health, our New Testament sources teach us, is how well the love of Jesus is shown in our daily or communal life.

Healthy Churches are very likely to grow in numbers – but are not focussed on this. They have seven common characteristics or marks, which are signposts rather than a toolset or “how to do it” manual. Only the first two are mentioned here: the first is Energised by Faith and the second Outward-looking Focus. Everything seems to flow from these two.

Energised (or tired!) by Faith – Energy can come from:

- The need for the sheer survival of our church
- Having an excellent choir
- Preserving our historic building
- Keeping “our” group in control
- The desire to keep things just as they are
- And so on ...

Well does it? Should it? ... or should it come only from a desire to serve God and one another and help other people to grow in and share their faith. Health is the result of a long journey of discipleship and discovery. A long-term commitment to develop the quality (holiness?) and vitality of the church is the key to health (HCH paraphrased).

... and anyway:

- What is a Church? – let alone a healthy church!
- How can we make room for change?
- Should there be significant change or just some additions to what we already have?
- Should it be “Evolutionary” or “Revolutionary”?
- How do we avoid “throwing the baby out with the bathwater”?
- Are we a club, a religious organisation or a community?

“Congregations do not generally operate as Christian communities. They are, instead, gatherings of individuals” ... “We commonly think of the Christian life from an individualistic, or at best an organisational, perspective, but rarely from a communal one” (HCH).

A big question for St James’ is, “Where are we?” The House-group has had a “go” at trying to understand what the seven marks are and what they imply. Discussions in a friendly group atmosphere have helped us to address, though not necessarily totally resolve, these issues. If you wish to comment on or discuss the issues raised, or indeed any related issues, please contact:

Bob Knight 336236 or Chris Platel 332466

Alternatively, why not write your own article on some aspect of spirituality/ church life which you regard as important? The sharing of everyone’s real views and feelings about our faith is perhaps a really valuable input and “energising” process.

History File

Little Heath Pit. Part 1

Following the interest in my article about the monster fish last month I'd like to explain some of the earliest information we have about Little Heath Pit. The origins of the pit at Little Heath date back to at least 1711 when Gerard Townsend, a Merchant of Chester (Ironmonger), who had purchased the Old Hall, built "a pond for fish", enlarging a pond on land belonging to the then Lord of the Manor, Sir Henry Harpur of Calke Abbey in Derbyshire. Evidence for this comes from a case at Chester Assizes in 1772 when Robert Townsend, Gerard's son and heir was prosecuted for not paying tax to the Lord of the Manor of Christleton for the pond on his land, for over 50 years. The case involving "a pond for fish" at Little Heath was a very long drawn out affair, but it appears that Robert Townsend won the argument in court. The pond was on an area of land, even then described as "common land", land that the people of Christleton had a right to use for grazing and watering their animals, a place to roam freely.

The Geology.

The area around Little Heath was the source of a number of minerals suitable for extraction, and used in many ways in village life. The village of Christleton is built on top of beds of Old Red Sandstone rock dating from about 300 million years ago, and there are several places in the village where this sandstone can be seen.

The main quarry in Quarry Lane which was at its deepest adjacent to the canal provided a large amount of good workable sandstone, useful for both walls and building stone for houses, many of which are still standing today. When the excavation of the A55 extension was taking place near the Rugby club at Littleton, the hard sandstone rock was found to be covered by sand, to the depth of almost 50 metres. The centre of Christleton is in effect, built on an island of sandstone projecting above a “sea” of clay and soft sand which is very deep in many places. During the last great ice age, glaciers covered the area and brought with them thousands of tons of boulder clay and debris of volcanic rocks from the Lake District and North Wales. The Cheshire Plain itself was carved out by these glaciers and evidence of this can be seen from any high point overlooking the area.

Most farmland in and around Christleton contains some evidence of the deposits of both clay and these erratic rocks, and one such granite boulder has been left at the side of the Pit near Old Pits Farm for people to see. Hundreds of marl pits still remain in the Parish as evidence of where the clay was best for marling. Although we have lost many of these pits in the last fifty years, Christleton can still be described as the pond capital of Cheshire from the density of the ponds that remain. In the 1980's, a borehole survey of the Pit was carried out by Geoff Clifton from Gifford & Partners. This showed that the depth of clay at the pit varies from a few centimetres to many metres. The ground typically appears to be 1m of fill (silt and clay) over a thin lens of sand, below which is 1m of clay, and below that 75cm of dry sand all lying on top of the sandstone bedrock. In another core hole we find that just over 3m down there is evidence of gravel which would have been ideal for road making by the local Highways Committee, which in the 1800's was the responsibility of the village itself.
